About This Game

Make the movie of your dreams amid the glamor and romance of 1950s Hollywood!

"Hollywood Visionary" is a 150,000-word interactive novel by Aaron A. Reed, where your choices control the story. It's entirely text-based--without graphics or sound effects--and fueled by the vast, unstoppable power of your imagination.

As head of your own movie studio, you call the shots: hire Hitchcock, seduce Garbo, build your studio into an Oscar-winning powerhouse or star in a B-movie train wreck. Control everything about your production, from genre to casting to building up buzz.

Do you have what it takes to become a Hollywood visionary?

- Conquer the movie biz as a writer, director, producer, actor, or editor
- Banter with Hollywood royalty like Orson Welles and Greta Garbo
- Choose from dozens of genres and modifiers to make your film unique

- Five possible endings to discover
 - Find love or throw yourself into your art: extensive but optional romance plots
 - Win an Oscar, create a cult classic, or languish in film obscurity
 - Will you name names for the blacklist, or risk everything to uphold your artistic ideals?
 - 150,000 words of content
 - Flexible gender presentation: independently control your pronouns, appearance, titles, and romance options

"I'm sure you'll be receptive to the changes I've suggested to make this more the kind of picture that wholesome American audiences would like to see." He smiles as he hands the script over.

You flip through it lightly. The whole script is filled with red pen marks: scenes crossed out, lines rewritten to ridiculously inoffensive alternatives. What do you say?

- "We'll be happy to make these changes." (Truth)
- "We'll be happy to make these changes." (Lie)
- "We'll consider your revisions, but I can't promise anything."
- "This is censorship, but I'll consider some of these changes, if I must."
- "I'm not changing a word."

You have only seconds to decide what to do. If the fire spreads to C Stage, most of your props and costumes could be destroyed, not to mention the negatives of all the footage you've shot. You can't imagine a worse disaster for your production. But if anyone's trapped in B Stage, by the time the fire department gets here it might be too late to help them. The flames are climbing higher. What do you do?

- Turn to B Stage, to look for survivors.
- Turn to C Stage, to save the negatives.
- Try to marshal the gathering crowd to do both.
- Wait for the firefighters to get here.

"Well, sir, it's also a science fiction picture," you say, "something to light the imagination on fire."

Your movie is a science fiction musical, but you need to let the studio boss know it's also...

An epic.

In 3-D!

Set in the past.

Religious.

Controversial.

An adaptation.

Experimental.

Dark.

Racy.
